BACK FROM THE HAGUE

American Ambassadors Return Home Well Pleased with the Results.

New York, Nov. 6.—General Horace Porter and Joseph H. Choate, two of the American ambassadors to the recent peace conference at The Hague, returned home today on the steamer Kron Prinzessin Cecilie, and will go on to Washington in a few days to submit a report to the president. Both General Porter and Mr. Choate expressed themselves as being entirely satisfied with the results of the second conference.

Because two of the principal questions before the conference—obligatory arbitration and limitation of armaments—failed to take positive form, Mr. Choate said the idea prevailed in some quarters that little had been accomplished. This view, he declared, would be dispelled when the results of the conference were studied and their far-reaching effect fully realized.

No less than 14 conventions dealing with various phases of war, were adopted, and the conference also declared in favor of many more propositions among them the doctrine of obligatory arbitration.

One of the principal propositions (adopted unanimously) was offered by the American delegation through General Porter and designated "the Porter proposition." This convention prohibits the use of armed force for the recovery of contractual debts until all efforts at arbitration have failed. The importance of the convention was emphasized by the fact that it was signed by every creditor and debtor nation.

TEX RICKARD AGAIN IN FIGHT BUSINESS

Goldfield, Nev., Nov. 6.—"Tex" Rickard has taken up the fight business again, and is after the biggest match that has ever been pulled off in the United States. He has wired Sam Fitzpatrick the following:

"Congratulations on your defeat of Flynn. In event of Johnson defeating Burns, will offer the biggest purse ever given for a fight for a match between him and Jeffries, the only stipulation being that the fight be held in Nevada." "Tex" says he will go as high as $40,000 for the match. He says Jeffries has no reason to draw the color line, as he has met negroes before in the ring, and that if he fails to come through the public will demand some other explanation.

Rickard is also out with a bid for another match between Joe Gans and Battling Nelson, at Ely, Nev., next New Year's day, where he offers a purse of $25,000 for the mill. Rickard is urging this go, as he says he is perfectly willing to take all the money Jim May of Reno will bet on the merits of the men. Rickard wants to wager that Gans will stop Nelson inside of twenty rounds.

Sheriff's Proclamation.

ELECTION.
For County Representative of Marion county, Ohio, on Tuesday, November 5th, 1907.
Sheriff's office, Marion county, Ohio, September 27th, 1907. To the qualified voters of Marion county, Ohio, whereas by the laws of Ohio election it is made the duty of the Sheriff, and he is thereby required to give public notice by Proclamation throughout his county of the time of holding such elections and the office at that time to be chosen. In pursuance of such requirements, I, Easton E. Brown, Sheriff of Marion county, Ohio, do hereby proclaim and make known that the first Tuesday after the first Monday being the 5th day of November, 1907, by the constitutional laws of the State of Ohio, and by Proclamation of Andrew L. Harris, Governor of the State of Ohio and to me directed appointed the day on which the qualified electors of Marion county are notified to meet in their respective wards, townships and voting precincts at their usual or proper places designated for holding elections between the hours of 5:30 o'clock in the forenoon and 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, and then and there proceed to vote by ballot for some person for State Representative from Marion County, Ohio. Said election being authorized by Andrew L. Harris, Governor of the State of Ohio, under a Proclamation made by him, July 22nd, 1907, for the purpose of filling a vacancy for the unexpired term existing in said office, caused by the death of John H. Crawlwell, a representative in the 77th General Assembly of Ohio from Marion county, Ohio.

Return of the Poll Books

The Judges and the Clerks shall make out their returns of the elections and the tally sheets thereof in duplicate, signed and certified according to law, one copy with one poll book to be transmitted to the County Board of Deputy Supervisors of elections by one of the judges, and one copy with the other poll book of the election shall be filed with the township clerk as with the city, town or village clerk as the case may be. For the further legal conduct of this election and the returns thereof you are referred to "an act to re-enact and amend certain actions of the Revised Statutes of Ohio, relating to and conduct of elections," and to amend an act to provide for a board of elections for certain specified counties." Passed April 18, 1892 (Second Volume 80, Ohio Laws 1892) also an act to amend and repeal certain sections as passed April 25, 1893, (See Volume 90, Ohio Laws 1893) also "An act to amend and supplement certain sections as passed April 5, 1894." (See Volume 91, Ohio Laws 1894.) For further particulars as to said amendments reference may be had to said amendments as published in full by direction of the State of Ohio, Given under my hand officially at the Sheriff's office in the city of Marion, Ohio, this 25th day of September A. D., 1907.

Washington.—An object lesson in the increase of the cost of living has been afforded the government in the proposals submitted for supplying provisions to the fleet of Admiral Evans for the trip to the Pacific. There was an increase in the price of every article offered over the prices last year. The most notable case was in the proposal for furnishing 1,000,000 pounds of beef, the increase being a considerable fraction of a cent a pound.

AMONG MAGAZINES

TOBACCO HIS ROYAL RUIN.

"Yes, them Pacific Islanders spotted Wilkins' big red beard a spreadin' down his chest and they made him king because he had a bigger beard than the whole posse on 'em and their law said the man with the finest beard was Heaven descended and should be king. All went beautiful for a time.

"It was a fifty pound case of plug tobacco that ruined Lemuel Wilkins. It was cast ashore from some wreck or other, and I welcomed it with songs of rejoicing. And being grateful to the Red Whiskered King, I taught him how to chew. He took to it like a seaman to rum. And we'd pass the warm, star-lit evenings clamin' our jaws on chunks of god old Bristol Navy and feel our hearts expand with love for our fellow men. He wasn't a neat chewer, he used to trickle some when he spit. He had hopes of bein' able to hit a knot-hole at ten feet like me, but he was a mere apprentice, so to speak.

"There was a wild roar from his followers the next mornin'. I heard the hell-raisin' racket and rushed to the scene. There was a streak of brown and another of gray runnin' half way down his beard. I darsent believe my eyes. The petty chiefs was mowldin' in around him utterin' shrill cries. Alas, it was too true. The tobacco juice had done its deadly devastation over night. The Sacred Whiskers had begun to crock and run.

"The Head Grom of the Bed Chamber was summoned on the jump. His acute and expert vision could not be fooled. He pronounced the whiskers a harrowing imitation that might have been made in Germany. Then the chiefs held a formal trial. I wasn't there. I was wildly searchin' for a seagone canoe when they dragged me back from the beach. Five hours later the bogus god had been beaten to death with war clubs and a bona fide human or home-grown set of Whiskers was reigning in his stead. He had confessed all, miserable wretch that he was, and I was accused and tried for conspiracy.

"No they didn't kill me, but they done me much worse. I was condemned to have my whiskers pulled out with pincers, every last hair of 'em. Do you fathom what that meant? With a face as clean as a billiard ball, I was no longer fit to be with men. I was deserted, cast out, dishonored, fit only to do wimin's work. And they made me do it. It was that or starve. They put me to work in the laundry doing up the royal whisker-covers what was put on by the King and his Cabinet at night, same as we use night-caps. There is things worse than death, just as the Good Book says that the bite of an ungrateful son is more grievous than the sting of a serpent."—From "The Tales of a Collector of Whiskers," by Ralph D. Paine, in The Outing Magazine for November.

THE NOVEMBER AMERICAN BOY.

The departure of Hiawatha is the central figure of the two-color cover of the November American Boy, forming the fourth series of Hiawatha pictures running this favorite boys' monthly. In excellence of matter, both for the boys and adults, this number is surely a winner. The second chapter of the fine sea story, Jimmy Jones—Pirate, occupies the first pages by the opening chapters of "That Dillingham Boy," by Oliver Optic. Off the Reservation is continued three chapters, as is John T. Trowbridge's serial, The Boy and The Beast, and A Boy of the Revolution is concluded. Among the fine short stories and larger articles are: Talented Dogs, telling of the intelligence of "man's faithful friend;" Why the Academy Won, showing how truth and straightforward dealing always win out; James Otis, Writer of over 100 Boys' Books, giving a biographical sketch of this favorite boys' author. Youth and War tells about Secretary of War Taft and his games with his son, Charlie. Helping a Lame Locomotive shows how a boy's mechanical ingenuity was of great service at a critical moment. Vag, the Story of a Dog, teaches kindness to animals. If you wish to Succeed gives some valuable pointers to the boy who is ambitious. Then there are The Boy on His Muscle, with pictures of "Ty" Cobb, that baseball wonder; How the Carlisle Indian Boys spent their football money; How a Plucky Alabama Boy Went to School; Boy of Fifteen Builds Wireless for 85 cents; Weird New Creatures in Zoos; Points Concerning Bats; A Blind Naturalist, and many others. The Chat with Big Americans this month is an interview with Harry Kellar, the celebrated conjuror, and Keeping Tab on the World is full of interesting information. The regular department of Photography; Stamps, Coins, and Curios; Boy Mechanic and Electrician; O. A. B.; Legion of Honor; and Tangles, replete with information that the boys want. In addition there are 63 illustrations. One dollar a year. The

THE MODESTY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Ida M. Tarbell presents a wonderful story of the Lincoln-Douglas debates in the November American Magazine. It is "Billy" Brown's own story. "Billy" was a Springfield druggist who knew Lincoln well.

When the debates were arranged, the plain people of Illinois pitied Lincoln. They thought that Douglas would defeat him easily, "Billy" goes on:

"I reckon the most of the Republicans was a blamed sight more uneasy than we was. They'd got so used to seein' Douglas gift everything he went after, that they thought he'd be sure to lick Lincoln now. I hear 'em talkin' about it among themselves every now and then and sayin' 'I wish Lincoln hadn't done it.' He ain't had experience like Douglas. Why, Douglas's been debatin' for twelve years in the United States Senate with the biggest men in the country, and he's always come out ahead. Lincoln ain't got a show."

"You needn't think M. Lincoln didn't know how they was talkin'. He never made no mistake about himself, Mr. Lincoln didn't. He knew he wasn't a big gun like Douglas. I could see he was blue as a whetstone sometimes, thinkin' of the difference between 'em. What's agin us in this campaign boys, I heard him say one day, 'Is me. There ain't no use denyin' that Douglas has always been a big success and I've always been a flat failure. Everybody expects him to be president and always has and is actin' accordin'. Nobody's ever expected anything from me. I tell you we've got to run this campaign on principle. There ain't nothin' in your candidate.' And he looked so cast down I felt plumb sorry for him.

"But you needn't think by that that he was shirkin' it—no, sir, not a mite. Spite of all his blues, he'd set his teeth for a fight."

COCKRAN IS IN CUSTODY

New York Congressman Charged with Trying to Vote Illegally.

New York, Nov. 6.—Congressman W. Bourke Cockran was arrested on a charge of illegal voting yesterday afternoon at the polling place in Third avenue. The policeman who made the arrest said he could not verify the address given by Mr. Cockran at 310 East Seventeenth street from which address Mr. Cockran had registered. The congressman was taken to the police station and thence to a police court.

Mr. Cockran is grand sachein of Tammany hall. A servant of the East Seventeenth street house had sworn that no one named Bourke Cockran lived there and Magistrate Correll issued the warrant while under the impression that some one was trying to vote on the congressman's name.

When Mr. Cockran was arraigned in court, one of State Attorney General Jackson's assistants denounced the arrest as an outrage and Mr. Cockran was promptly discharged. Mr. Cockran said the East Seventeenth street house was his residence before he went to congress and that he had never forfeited his right to vote from that address.

"When I registered," he said, "I told the inspectors who I was, and explained the entire situation. I was not challenged when I registered nor today. I fail to see on what authority this arrest was made."

THE SHERIFF OPENS MAIL

Is Arrested for Alleged Violation of Law—Case is Unprecedented.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Fred E. Carter, sheriff of Lake county, Ind., was arrested yesterday by United States Marshal David C. Rankin, of Indianapolis, charged with having opened the mail of Alexander Poleski, a former prisoner.

The case is unusual in the history of criminal jurisprudence. If the government established its contention, it is declared, sheriff's deputy sheriff, wardens and other officials in penitentiaries, jails and similar institutions throughout the country are in danger of a like experience.

On the other hand, friends of Carter claim that if the officers in jails and prisons are forbidden to open the mail of prisoners, plots for escape may be hatched with impunity, and forbidden articles, ranging from cigarettes to the deadliest poisons, may be sent through the mail to prisoners.

Carter furnished bond in $1000 to appear before the federal grand jury in Indianapolis next Friday.

Federal officials declare that opening the letters of a prisoner comes clearly within the federal statute forbidding tampering with the mails. They say further, that this is a test case and will establish a legal precedent.

Why He Was Released. In a report the superintendent of the Jubbulpore jail mentions the case of a cook named Lazarus who was sentenced to two days' imprisonment in default of a fine of two rupees. He was released on the day of his admission, the reason being that "the amount of trouble to which the jail staff was put in dealing with him was out of all proportion to the probable effect of the punishment on him."—Westminster Gazette.
